Galt

A painting of a Blackfoot landscape. The foreground is dominated by a vibrant, textured green field, possibly grass or a field of wildflowers, rendered with visible brushstrokes. In the middle ground, a wide, calm river flows horizontally across the scene. On the right bank of the river, there is a small, simple wooden building with a dark roof. The background consists of rolling hills and a pale, overcast sky. The overall style is impressionistic and somewhat somber due to the muted colors of the sky and hills.
